THREE DIFFERENT MODES

Volunteers can check in as they arrive and receive name badges. You can quickly see who's checked in that day.

Event Check-in Use the check-in system for events, youth services, or any type of meeting where you want to track attendance.

Express mode allows parents to simply scan a barcode key tag, and the child's name badge and receipt are printed immediately. This mode is extremely quick and simple, and the only equipment visible at the check-in station is the scanner and the printer. In this mode, check-in can be performed without any assistance from attendants.

Touch-screen mode allows parents to check in using a touch screen to search using their last name or the last four digits of their phone number. Once the family is displayed on the screen, parents simply select the children to be checked in. This mode can run un-assisted as well.

Attendant mode allows a volunteer attendant to perform the check-in. No special hardware is needed because the attendant can just ask the parents for their name or phone number to quickly look them up and check them in.

- Name badges can be completely customized to show the information you want, including any special needs, allergies or medicines.
- Works with remote facilities Excellerate check-in can be run "offline". Attendance is stored on a portable USB stick and synchronized with the main database later at the office.
- Ensure the safety of your children When checking in, a unique security number is printed on the name badge and security receipt. This receipt must be presented when picking up the child and matched up with the child's name badge to ensure a secure pickup.
- Setup self-check-in kiosks Use a touchscreen and a barcode scanner together. Parents can easily check-in their kids themselves. If they don't have their barcode with them, they can use the touch-screen.
